| 1. Staying inside for fun  | 5. Time for planning          |
| 2. A book versus the Net   | 6. Time for physical activity |
| 3. Reflect on your morning | 7. Spend time outdoors        |
| 4. Sharing lunch and work  | 8. Do the things you enjoy    |

- A. One of the best things to do during lunch break is to exercise. It still may sound a bit strange, but experts say that combining fitness and lunch is one of the best ways to incorporate exercise into a busy lifestyle. Who said that exercise is only for losing weight? Start exercising during your lunch hour and you will feel better and full of energy to accomplish your difficult tasks. Even if it's just going for a walk or doing a few sit-ups, your body will thank you!
- B. During your lunch break you may do lots of things. You might think that reading a book isn't a healthy thing to do during your lunch break, but it's much better than surfing the Internet. Unlike the Net, it does not only keep our mind active, but it also improves speaking, writing, and reading skills. If we had a hard day at work, reading a book without looking at the screen will help keep our mind distracted from problems.
- C. Many people don't leave their workplaces during a lunch break, but it's a huge mistake. Your lunch break should be a sacred time. A time when you can step away from your computer. No matter whether you like or hate your job, leave the building and sit on a nearby bench. You can also take a short walk. You will feel much better when you are back from a lunch break and you will have more energy and motivation to accomplish your tasks.
- D. Managing school and work is never an easy task. It might seem impossible to balance all of these responsibilities, but it can be done nevertheless. If you have plenty of tasks, you can spend 15-20 minutes of your lunch hour working on them and have more free time in the evening. Just make sure you don't spend the whole lunch hour doing your lessons, because having a healthy snack and doing some exercises are still essential.
- E. Having busy days we hope to manage time somehow and complete all the things we need to do. A lunch hour is a great time to plan your weekly meals and food shopping lists, because planning is good for your wallet and your health as well. You can also plan your lunch meals to avoid eating unhealthy food. Your lunch hour is also a wonderful time to plan your everyday jobs and social calendar and you can do it sitting on a nearby bench.
- F. Lunch break is such a period in your life which we can name 'eternal'. Use your lunch break for something you like most of all, such as going shopping, seeing your friends, or visiting the park or some other lovely spots. Just make sure that you meet positive people during your lunch hour and it will improve your mood and refresh you till the rest of the day. You'll go back to the office with absolutely different mindset and you'll work much better.
- G. A lunch break is the perfect time to evaluate what you have done before noon. Try to self-reflect on tasks you've accomplished and this will help you feel proud of yourself. Notice what needs to be done, and concentrate on those things. If you haven't accomplished some tasks, don't worry, you'll have enough time to accomplish them after your lunch break just keep a positive attitude since stress doesn't solve anything.

Finding your sportsman spirit

Doing sports, we can really test our physical fitness in contest, and it is one of the only ways that nations clash peacefully. Sportsmen and sportswomen are today’s warriors — the contests A _____ on the pitches and courts are the closest things we have to gladiatorial fighting.

If sportsmen are like warriors, then the ‘sportsman spirit’ could be considered the closest thing we have to a warrior’s code — to bushido or to chivalry. If you develop good sportsmanship then this means that you take joy in the contest and at the same time B _____, that you win graciously and that you don’t cheat.

If you have put time and effort into training then you are aware of the blood, sweat and tears that the opposition has put in as well. They will have had the same dedication to their game as you have and you will know precisely C _____. In this way you are brothers (or sisters) and the only difference between you is D _____ different teams. For this reason they deserve your respect.

There are many traditions in many sports to help us retain good relationships with our opponents. This means things like shaking hands at the end of a tennis match, and this is E _____ and honourable rather than just being muddy skirmishes.

You might have performed brilliantly on the pitch, but you are kidding yourself if you believe F _____ of your own doing. If nothing else, the weather and luck will have played a role in the outcome, and if you’re playing a team sport then you are only one cog in a machine.

- 1. what keeps sports civil
- 2. who can’t keep their temper
- 3. that you chose
- 4. that you respect your opponent
- 5. that your victory was entirely
- 6. that are played out
- 7. what they have been through

REUNION

The last time I saw my father was in Grand Central Station. I was going from my grandmother’s in the Adirondacks to a cottage on the Cape that my mother had rented, and I wrote my father that I would be in New York between trains for an hour and a half, and asked if we could have lunch together. His secretary wrote to say that he would meet me at the information booth at noon, and at twelve o’clock sharp I saw him coming through the crowd.

He was a stranger to me – my mother divorced him three years ago and I hadn’t been with him since – but as soon as I saw him I felt that he was my father, my flesh and blood, my future and my doom. I knew that when I was grown I would be something like him; I would have to plan my campaigns within his limitations. He was a big, good-looking man, and I was terribly happy to see him again.

He struck me on the back and shook my hand. "Hi, Charlie," he said. "Hi, boy. I’d like to take you up to my club, but it’s in the Sixties, and if you have to catch an early train I guess we’d better get something to eat around here." He put his arm around me, and I smelled my father the way my mother sniffs a rose. It was a rich compound of whiskey, after-shave lotion, shoe polish, woollens, and the rankness of a mature male. I hoped that someone would see us together. I wished that we could be photographed. I wanted some record of our having been together.

We went out of the station and up a side street to a restaurant. It was still early, and the place was empty. The bartender was quarrelling with a delivery boy, and there was one very old waiter in a red coat down by the kitchen door. We sat down, and my father hailed the waiter in a loud voice. "Kellner!" he shouted. "Garcon! You!" His boisterousness in the empty restaurant seemed out of place. "Could we have a little service here!" he shouted. Then he clapped his hands. This caught the waiter’s attention, and he shuffled over to our table.

"Were you clapping your hands at me?" he asked.

"Calm down, calm down," my father said. "It isn’t too much to ask of you – if it wouldn’t be too much above and beyond the call of duty, we would like a couple of Beefeater Gibsons."

"I don’t like to be clapped at," the waiter said.

"I should have brought my whistle," my father said. "I have a whistle that is audible only to the ears of old waiters. Now, take out your little pad and your little pencil and see if you can get this straight: two Beefeater Gibsons. Repeat after me: two Beefeater Gibsons."

"I think you'd better go somewhere else," the waiter said quietly.

"That," said my father, "is one of the most brilliant suggestions I have ever heard. Come on, Charlie."

I followed my father out of that restaurant into another. He was not so boisterous this time. Our drinks came, and he cross-questioned me about the baseball season. He then struck the edge of his empty glass with his knife and began shouting again. "Garçon! You! Could we trouble you to bring us two more of the same."

"How old is the boy?" the waiter asked.

"That," my father said, "is none of your business."

"I'm sorry, sir," the waiter said, "but I won't serve the boy another drink."

"Well, I have some news for you," my father said. "I have some very interesting news for you. This doesn't happen to be the only restaurant in New York. They've opened another on the corner. Come on, Charlie."

He paid the bill, and I followed him out of that restaurant into another ...

12 The narrator was looking forward to meeting with his father because he

- 1) expected to get a valuable present from him.
- 2) missed the feeling of being with him.
- 3) wanted to stay with him in New York.
- 4) hoped that his parents would get back together.

13 The narrator's request to meet was accepted by his father

- 1) with great pleasure.
- 2) unwillingly.
- 3) in business-like manner.
- 4) with much hope and expectation.

14

The narrator wanted to be photographed with his father because

- 1) he was proud of his father's good looks.
- 2) he wished to remember their moments together.
- 3) it was the happiest time of his life.
- 4) he wanted to boast of his father to his friends.

15

The father did not invite his son to his club because

- 1) the son was pressed for time to catch a train.
- 2) it was a closed club with no children allowed.
- 3) the man feared that his son would not behave properly.
- 4) it was necessary to book in advance to enter the club.

16

The father's behaviour in the first restaurant was inappropriate as he

- 1) was too boisterous in an empty restaurant.
- 2) tried to boast of his knowledge of foreign languages.
- 3) could not afford to pay the bill.
- 4) treated the waiter in a rude manner.

17

The waiter in the next restaurant refused to bring them more drinks as

- 1) the restaurant was closing soon.
- 2) the son looked pale and faint.
- 3) the boy was too young to drink alcohol.
- 4) the waiter got angry with the son.

18

The title of the story "Reunion" actually implies that the

- 1) son found his lost father after decades of separation.
- 2) son now would be living together with his father.
- 3) "father – son" relations is what both sides feel the need for.
- 4) son made an attempt to re-establish relations with his father.

Father Feels Starved

In the summers, when we went to the country, we usually hired a temporary cook to go with us, so that Margaret could stay in town. We hated to leave her, but the idea was that somebody must stay to 32_____ care of the house.

But this didn't work well. No matter how few the substitute's faults were, Father had no patience with them. One summer, I remember, there was a nice woman Delia who got on well with Mother because she was so obliging and pleasant, but who didn't 33_____ Father at all. "I don't give a damn how obliging she is," he 34_____ to say. "If she won't oblige me by cooking something fit to eat, she can go."

This didn't sound unreasonable, but to 35_____ the truth, Delia cooked well enough for the rest of us. Mother tried to 36_____ no attention to Father's grumbling. At breakfast Father would put down his coffee cup in disgust and roar: "Does she call this confounded mess coffee? Take it away!" And while Mother and Delia were frantically making a fresh pot, he would eat all of his omelet and bacon, and then declare that he was starved.

The longer Delia stayed with us, the more alarmed Father became. He ate heartily, but he said he didn't feel nourished. At last Mother had to 37_____ that it was impossible to go on like this. "This is Delia's last night. I do hope you will like Tobo, they say, he is a very good cook."

The next night, Father found out, that the first dish was too Oriental and the meat underdone. So Mother sent for Margaret. She knew she could always depend 38_____ Margaret.
